

Baroque Chamber Orchestra of Colorado COVID Safety Protocol - 2021-22 Season

Welcome back! We look forward to seeing you at our live concerts this fall. To ensure the health and safety of our audience members and musicians, starting October 1, 2021, BCOC joins a growing number of local performing arts groups* in requiring both facial coverings for all and proof of full vaccination at live performances this season. Please be prepared to present proof at the door. Be assured that all BCOC musicians this season are fully vaccinated and we are requiring proof. We plan for social distancing and will provide you with details about each concert, since that is venue dependent. Thank you for your understanding and cooperation.

—If you are unvaccinated for medical reasons and wish to speak with us about your situation, please contact Michael Schlut at info@bcocolorado.org.

—BCOC has always been a family-friendly group, welcoming all ages including children. At this moment, we regret that the vaccination requirement means that we are temporarily unable to welcome children who are too young to be vaccinated. We look forward to the time when we can once again welcome our youngest audience members.

—If you are a subscriber and are not comfortable with this protocol, you may request a refund from tickets@bcocolorado.org.

—We will continually monitor changing regulations and recommendations, and keep you informed of any updates to our policy throughout the season.

We hope to see you soon for our season of joyful music!
